MUNICIPAL CONVENTION DELEGATES COMING TO PAY EDMONTON A VISIT

Large Party Leaves Saskatoon at 16.45 This Afternoon Arriving in Edmonton Tomorrow Morning— Seeing Saskatoon Today.

A large party of delegates in attendance at the convention of the Union of Canadian Municipalities will visit Edmonton tomorrow. Leaving Saskatoon at the regular Great West Express at 16.45, the party will reach Edmonton at 7.30 tomorrow morning and will spend the day looking at institutions, municipal utilities and public works. Included in the party will be: Mayor Graham, London; Mayor Bish, Halifax; Engineer Doane, Halifax; Controller Graham, Toronto; Mayor and Mrs. Oliver, Port William; Mayor Lavigne, Montreal; Mayor Herlihy, St. Catharines; Comptroller Dupuis, Montreal; Mayor Bissette, Outremont; M. Lapointe, M. P., Quebec, and a few delegates from Montreal.

Industrial Commissioner Hall is arranging for a fitting welcome to the delegates on their arrival here. A number of the public spirited businessmen have arranged to see that the visitors will be provided with a most enjoyable and interesting tour of the city. A luncheon will be given at noon in the Edmonton club at which Mayor Short, a number of the aldermen, and other city officials will be present.

Saskatoon, July 17.—The delegates spent this morning seeing Saskatoon. Over 100 cars lined up at the city hall at 10 o'clock this morning to convey the delegates to the Municipalities convention around the city. They were taken around the park system, over to the University and shown over the various public utilities of the city. The whole party left for Edmonton at 4.20 this afternoon.

Shawbrooks, Que., Next Year.—At the session last night Shawbrooks, Que., was chosen as the place at which the convention will be held in 1914. Officers for the year were elected as follows:

President, P. P. Bligh, mayor of Halifax. First vice-president, C. M. R. Graham, mayor of London. Second vice-president, F. E. Herlihy, Shawbrooks.

Third vice-president, F. E. Harrison, mayor of Saskatoon. Honorary secretary-treasurer, W. D. (Glen) Nelson, K. C., mayor of St. John's, Nfld. (re-elected).

Important Matters Discussed.—The longer part of the afternoon session was taken up with discussion of minor subjects, such as sewage and pavements. Many of the delegates complained that important subjects on the program had not been dealt with. They felt that they were not here by the city councils to secure information regarding civic improvements and that very little of any value had been forthcoming. Secretary Lighthall declared that this had not been because the effort had been made to secure leaders in civic matters, but without avail. The convention practically closed last night.

William, however, stated that he was leaving for the north coast in a few weeks' time, and intended to establish a store there. Despite the lengthy period which has elapsed, Clark is still anxious to find his brother. He stated that he had changed his address on several occasions, and it was quite possible that he had never received letters which his brother might have written. Clark intends settling in the Peace River country.

Evidence of a Well Organized Effort to "Fire" Chalmers Brings Some Very Pointed Statements From Commissioner Who Has Handled Finance—Buck Attacks Chalmers.

That it is an utter impossibility to successfully operate the affairs of the city of Edmonton in anything like an efficient manner under the present system, was conclusively demonstrated yesterday afternoon by Commissioner Harrison in his evidence given to the committee of council now investigating the over expenditure of the car barns. Mr. Harrison came out point blank and recommended an elective commission form of government consisting of a mayor and five commissioners to be elected for a term of two years as the only solution of the present difficulties. If such a course were pursued he believed that the council board could be dispensed with and the business of the city handled much more satisfactorily.

In support of his arguments, Mr. Harrison produced facts and figures which he read to the committee. The illustrated the phenomenal growth of the city and the rapidly increasing business that must be dealt with in the central offices. Notwithstanding this enormous development an attempt is being made to conduct the affairs of the city along the lines in vogue and with much the same machinery as in former years. The day of the successful operation of the city under the present system is past, and Commissioner Harrison told the committee so yesterday afternoon.

In the event of the council being retained, Commissioner Harrison stated that a comptroller of finance should be appointed to take care of debenture issues and all matters of finance.

Mayor Falls to Divide Duties.

Alderman Driscoll asked Mr. Harrison if he considered the commission board responsible for the car barn trouble. Mr. Harrison replied that it was not the board, but the system that was to blame. He was also asked if any steps had been taken to re-organize the board according to the recommendations recently passed by the council. Mr. Harrison replied that the mayor, being the chairman of the board, was looking for the initiative in this matter, but he had not taken any steps yet.

CHANGING COMMISSIONERS UNWORKABLE

Mr. Harrison condemned the system of the council in continually firing and firing commissioners. He pointed out to the committee that a commissioner is trained for the many varied duties of his office under the present system, and then when he begins to get a grasp of the situation, he is replaced by a new man who must be taught all over again.

WELL ORGANIZED EFFORT TO FIRE CHALMERS

This thrust on the part of Mr. Harrison hit home hard, as recently there appears to have been a well-organized attempt to get rid of Commissioner Chalmers. In his evidence relative to the car barn trouble, Mr. Harrison stated that the construction part of the work was handled by Commissioner Chalmers and the financial end of the work was handled by himself.

The whole trend of Commissioner Harrison's evidence was to show that the present system of government was unworkable and brought it home to him that the construction part of the work was handled by Commissioner Chalmers and the financial end of the work was handled by himself.

CHALMERS, STAR WITNESS, ON DEFENSIVE

Commissioner Chalmers was called a witness in connection with the probe as to over-expenditure on the new car barns. He challenged any contractor to come forward and say that he could do the work under similar conditions for less money.

As far as the over-expenditure was concerned, Mr. Chalmers stated that it was not prepared to admit that such a condition existed until he saw the figures of a competent auditor, after which he would be prepared to meet the charges.

HARRISON DECLARES UNWARRANTED FOR COMMISSION FORM

He informed the committee that he was not aware that this report, compiled by Inspector Buck, had been sent to the council, and the first information he had was the following morning when he read about it in the public press.

Commissioner Chambers told the committee that he took full charge of the construction work in connection with the new car barns and that the city received 100 cents on the dollar for every bit of material and all labor employed in the construction.

Mr. Chambers stated that he was not sure just what the building actually did cost, but he believed that any good contractor figuring on the job would not be likely to put in a figure for less than 12 cents per cubic foot for the barns and 15 cents for the office building. In the new barns there are 1,022,000 cubic feet and 96,000 in the office building. This would mean that these two buildings would cost the city $187,000 if built by contract.

Under the books are audited by a competent auditor, Mr. Chambers states that he will not admit that there is yet $175,000 spent on this work. He suggested that a chartered accountant with the city architect and superintendent of construction, Small, would be the best way to get at the correct figures. It will be necessary to have the records, shown in the books of the stores and work department.

Says Buck's Statement Wrong.

After questioning the report submitted by Inspector Buck on the over-expenditure of the new car barns, Commissioner Chambers stated that this was a mis-statement of fact. He was not aware such a statement was being prepared until he saw something about it in the paper after being presented to council, that in his opinion Mr. Buck is not capable of auditing the books and making proper check of the new car barns, he being only an accountant. "I am prepared to go into the box and swear that this report submitted by Mr. Buck is incorrect," said Mr. Chambers, "any architect or a man who is thoroughly acquainted with construction work will be able to get at the exact facts and figures needed in connection with the work, and such a man should be engaged to assist a competent auditor in this work, according to Mr. Chambers.

Commissioner Chambers told the committee that he had some more and a half million dollars worth of construction work in the province and that he would have the same thing done as his part of the work went in the building of the new barns. He suggested a competent superintendent of construction department who has an absolute check of all the material and labor used in the building. "I will challenge any builder in the city to say that he could save very much on the building if conditions are taken into consideration." Material and labor were about 15 per cent. higher last year. It was a difficult matter to get labor, and over 300 men were fired during construction.

When asked why the building was started without specifications and price estimates, Mr. Chambers stated that the change of site at that time was not necessary to get along with the work and it was therefore commenced before the plans were final. He did not consider this bad practice as many of the largest contractors and railroad corporations follow similar methods.

The leaky condition of the roof was pointed to the situation of the building, Mr. Chambers. He replied that there were no more leaks in it than in any other large building of similar character. There are many skylights in the building and this of necessity means that there may be some leaks.

Mr. Chambers took exception to Inspector Buck's report on the boiler. This boiler was purchased from the south side plant at less than half price. It was put in first-class condition and almost as good as new at a price of about $100. The report states that over $700 was spent on the boiler. Commissioner Chambers stated that it has been tested by the government inspector to 300 pounds cold water pressure. That it has not cost the department over $2000, and a new one could not be purchased for less than $2800.

McLean Not a Factor.

Commissioner McLean was heard, but since he was not directly concerned in the construction of the car barns, he did not throw any light on the subject.

Buck's Sensational Evidence. Inspector Buck gave what was evidently sensational evidence to the committee. He stated that on a recent visit being made to the barns he found them in a similar state. His first thought of over-expenditure in connection with the new barns was conceived after Superintendent Woodroffe had suggested to him that the department had been "stuck" on this job. He wanted to make an analysis of the whole business by the mayor.

Says Chambers Interfered.

When asked if he had any interference in connection with his duties from any of the committee, Inspector Buck stated that he had been interfered with by Commissioner Chambers. Mr. Chambers had taken the stores and works department with him, and together they talked with Mr. Buck. When asked if he kept a cost book and selling prices, Mr. Buck stated that he did. The inspector then pointed out to him that he had not done so, when Mr. Chambers agreed with Mr. Buck.

Afterward Mr. Buck stated that Mr. Buck if he had any other instance to show that Commissioner Chambers interfered with him in carrying out his duties.

Winnipeg, July 17.—In giving their views on the death of saintly priest last Thursday night was caused by coming in contact with a defective electric system in the building. The jury that the jury made a visit inspection of street electric wires and service wires leading to houses should be made.

Brighton Bent Buck Away.

Inspector Buck then stated that Mr. Brighton told him he could not see the books for two weeks, and must stay in the city. The inspector called the attention of the mayor to this fact and Mr. Brighton was sent for. In the mayor's office Mr. Brighton was told that he did not allow Mr. Buck free access to the books he would be through right officer. Inspector Buck stated that Mr. Brighton had taken Mr. Brighton's part, stating that as Brighton was an experienced man and Mr. Buck only a new man he did not want to see Brighton resign.

Alderman Driscoll stated that he did not see very much in this to warrant Inspector Buck charging Commissioner Chambers with undue interference in the carrying out of his duties.

Alderman Walsh questioned Inspector Buck about the recent explanation instructions sent out from headquarters. He was asked if he ever knew of a commissioner going to the head of the department and asking him not to carry out instructions sent from the head office. Inspector Buck replied that he had. At this point Alderman Driscoll objected to any further conversation which he may have had with the superior, and he stated that he would not be interested in a detailed statement of all labor and material used in the building.

When asked if he had any reason to think that there was a fraction in the commission board and that some members encouraged insubordination, Inspector Buck replied that he had no personal knowledge of such conditions.

Alderman Livingston moved that Superintendent Woodroffe be asked to bring in a detailed statement of all labor and material used in the building.

When the question was asked to take the books of the stores and works in so far as the car barns accounts are concerned, Mr. Buck stated that he was empowered to secure a competent architect or a builder or a contractor to estimate what the cost of a building like the car barns should be. The committee then adjourned to meet at the call of the chair.

MUSIO.

Let me go where'er I will:
I have a sky-born melody still:
It sounds from all the things I see,
It sounds from all the things I hear,
From that fair, from that that fair,
From that that fair, from that that fair.

It is not only the rose,
It is not only the bird,
Not only when the rainbow glows,
Nor in the song of woman heard,
But in the darkest, meanest things,
But in the darkest, meanest things,
But in the darkest, meanest things,
But in the darkest, meanest things.

The not in the high stars alone,
Nor in the cup of budding flowers,
Nor in the reddest of the mellow tones,
Nor in the bow that smiles in showers,
There always, always, something sings,
— Ralph Waldo Emerson.

CALL OF THE MUSE.

"I love you! I love you!"
He cried, "Oh, I love you!"
"I know it! I know it!"
She sighed, "Oh, I know it!"
"I know it! I know it!"
He cried, "Oh, I love you!"

"Percy Piffen," exclaimed the beautiful girl, her eyes flashing with a singular expression of awe, "breathe one word of poetry and we are lost to each other all our lives as long as we live. I am a business girl and if you hold your tongue."

"Incandescent bulb of my existence!" he cried. "Have pity on my lone hair and dreamy blue eyes. Heed that it is spirit and the call of the muse will not be denied. Oh, maiden, fairer than the fly you make me feel."

"Gee!" she whispered. "If you humme, pop in English."
"Oh, I cannot! I cannot!" he pouted. "It is spring. Oh, would that thou wert Percy's bride. Oh, maiden."

"Our rhyme," she hissed in a low voice, "and I shall die across your hair to beat the band!"
"Speak not of dies on hair," he cried in anguish. "Oh, lady, were I to you inexpressible as 'Heads'!" she warned, springing to both feet.

But the words were not "as costly" blue.
"With a low but businesslike cry of distress, the maiden fled across your hair."

SILHOJETTE GOWN IS COMING TO TOWN.

Attention, please! Here is something new and strange! Let me introduce you two fellows in the very latest and boldest gown and in the center a third woman never before popular in Sunny Alberta—the weather is much too damp.

The silhouettes has already been worn by Persian monarchs. The soft lines, pictured above are of lace and pleated tulle, worn with tulle of silk of white or flesh pink, with no suggestion of a petticoat unless it be of flimsy material. The Harem gown resembles Turkish trousers, which have succeeded the split skirt in Paris.

Wife Deserters Not to Get Off so Easily in Future

Criminal Code as Amended at Recent Sitting of Dominion House Will Make Deserting Husband Liable to One Year Imprisonment or $500 Fine.

Never an issue of any paper, not alone in this town, but in every western town, but there is a paragraph or perhaps two telling of some wife who has been deserted by her husband. Just a few lines, crowded in among the police news, but a real tragedy nevertheless. Until the present time there has been no provision in the criminal code whereby deserters could be proceeded against. Now there is an amendment to the criminal code, made at the recent session of the dominion parliament.

This amendment says: "212a. Every person is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine of $500, or to one year imprisonment, or to both, who (a) as a husband or head of a family, is under a legal duty to provide necessities for his wife or any child under 16 years of age; or (b) as a parent or guardian, is under a legal duty to provide necessities for any child under 16 years of age."

There is no highway, broad and free, Straight to the goal of our pilgrim kind. There's only a path, into Arcady.

Were it a road that the crowd could see,
Even the blind might lead the blind. There is no highway, broad and free. Somewhere, by hill and tangled lee,
Hither and thither the way is twined.

There's only a path into Arcady. Thou who art seeking the road with me,
Clasp hands and streets we must leave behind.

There is no highway, broad and free. Dear heart—what shall our guide-star be?
(Once we step down—where the footsteps dwindle—
There's only a path into Arcady.

Thousands are seeking in vain, but—
(One stepping)—the way shall find. There is no highway, broad and free. There's only a path into Arcady.

There will be clowns without number, acrobats, showmen and every other way. There will be ten bands. You will see the famous herd of trained elephants, followed by the racing camels hitched to their speeding wagons. There will be pretty women driving tandem and dare-devil charioteers with their swift couriers. There will be acrobats from India and whole flocks of Sheik and ponies to amuse the little ones. Scores of champion riders mounted on the best horses that money can procure, and a host of other things sufficient to make this wonderful spectacle nearly two miles long. Even if you don't want to pay the 25 cents admission fee, which is just one-half that levied by every other circus of consequence, you are welcome to the flowers in May to come down on the street and watch the circus pass by.

HOT? WELL, HERE'S A MESSAGE FROM WHERE IT IS 25 DEGREES BELOW ZERO

BY DOUGLAS MAWSON.
Via Hobart, Tasmania, by Wireless.
Commonwealth Bay, July 4.—While you are suffering with the summer heat, I am writing this message in the Antarctic circle, with the thermometer from 25 to 10 degrees below zero and with six months of solid night before me and my five companions.
We are in the depths of winter, for the seasons are reversed here.
The last penguin left us today.
We have had an addition to our family. Hester, one of the dogs presented to us by Amundsen, gave birth to five puppies, but four of them died with the cold.
Some of our instruments have been carried away by the wind, but Hodge has set our house in order for the winter, and we shall be more comfortable than we were last winter. Sledgeing is dangerous, owing to the heavy snowfall.
It is very fortunate that Capt. Davis has our wireless. Lower re-erected. Jeffries, the wireless man, anticipates being able to keep it standing in spite of the hurricanes, and he thinks that communication is better, now that the 24-hour night has set in.
A terrific whirlwind was experienced last night and almost took the roof off the hut, but the wireless tower stood firm.
We are assailed nightly by wireless signals from far and wide, so much so that it is difficult to pick out one particular message. Jeffries gets messages and news from all the world, so though we are imprisoned by the intense cold, nearly 2,000 miles from human habitation, we know everything that is going on and we communicate daily with the world.

BY W. G. SHEPHERD.
London, July 17.—Capt. J. K. Davis, Staff Correspondent.
Who has just arrived in London from the Antarctic circle, has secured this message for America, from Dr. Douglas Mawson.
It is the latest marvel of the wireless that you may sit, sweltering in Edmonton and read a message just written by a man in a snow-bound hut, amid eternal ice, during the 24 months' night.
Tall, lanky Capt. Davis, the chief of the steamship Aurora of the Mawson expedition, told me about Dr. Mawson's plight.
"He's a prisoner, of course, but he has plenty to eat and he has five good companions. I'm going back next November to rescue him."
"I almost rescued him last February. It was like this:
"In the summer of 1910 I put Dr. Mawson and his party on the antarctic shore at Commonwealth Bay and I steamer 1,500 miles westward and put a party of six men on to an ice floe where they were to make scientific investigations."

I asked back to Hobart, with the understanding that in December, 1911, I was to go back for them.
"I did this, but when I reached Commonwealth Bay I found Dr. Mawson wasn't there. He had gone 300 miles into the interior and, as I learned later, had had a terrible experience. One companion fell into a crevasse and was killed, and the other died of cold and hunger. For twenty-two days he struggled alone, while I waited for him at Commonwealth Bay.
"At last he returned, nearly dead, but a terrible wind was blowing from the shore and we could see the hut, the wireless tower and a man waving a flag. But we couldn't reach them."
"I decided to disobey orders and go for the six men 1,500 miles away on the ice field."
"Dr. Mawson and his men stood on the shore and watched us sail away. They knew that it meant they would be prisoners for a whole year in the hut, but I knew that it didn't mean death to them if I left them and it did mean death to the six on the ice field if I didn't get there."
"We found the six alive and well, though almost at the end of their resources. We loaded them on the Aurora, and got them back to Hobart, Tasmania.
"Imagine my delight at Hobart to find wireless messages awaiting me from Dr. Mawson himself telling me that he and the five men who were with him were well and that I had done the right thing in leaving as I did."

FACTS REGARDING AFRICA, CALLED DARK CONTINENT

Contains As Its Inhabitants About One-Tenth People on the Earth.

BETWEEN ONE AND TWO MILLION ARE WHITES

Those Living in the North Part Are a Mixed Class of People and Can Be Classed As of Neither Color.

The population of Africa has been variously estimated at 127,000,000 to 175,000,000 people. The truth of the matter is that no one knows for in some parts the natives have never been definitely numbered. I should say that a fair estimate would be 160,000,000, or one-tenth of the people of the world. Counting the area, including the islands, is 12,000,000 square miles, would give an average of 13 to the square mile. In North America, this average is 16; South America, 7; Europe, 125; Asia, 60; and Oceania, 2. The inhabitants of Africa are not regularly spotted over the country, but they follow the streams, where they may be thickly settled, while at other places there may be few or none. If these 160,000,000 passed before us continually night and day at the rate of one per second it would take something more than five years for them to pass. Of the above number, there are between one and two millions of the white race who have migrated thither from Europe. These are engaged in mining and trading, and in some parts, especially in South Africa, in agriculture. The remainder of the population may be divided among perhaps seven races, as follows: Abyssinians, Nubians, Nubians, Numidians, Hottentots, Bushmen and Bantu. The inhabitants of North Africa are a mixed class of people, neither white nor black. They consist in great part of a mixture of the Hottentot, Moor and Arab races. Some of the above named races. Though industrially and intellectually they surpass the negroes and other tribes farther south, yet they are still very backward in civilization.

Original Home in Doubt.

When Europeans first came to the country they found the Hottentot and Bushmen tribes in the extreme southwest. The Bantu in the south and east, and the negro in the west and center. Just where the original home of the black man was located is a question. Some try to prove by linguistic similarity that their early home was in one of the peninsulas of southern Asia. Others think they originated in Africa. I am inclined to favor the latter view. It is generally conceded at least that in the early centuries all the tribes migrated from a common centre around the great lakes in East Central Africa. But they must have separated many centuries ago, for today there is very little similarity in language between the negroes of the west and the Bantu of the south. The Bantu have many different dialects, but in grammatical construction they are somewhat similar. Not so when comparing Bantu with negro. The language of the Bushmen and Hottentots is somewhat similar to that of the negro, and it is therefore supposed that they separated from the tribes of the west after their migration from the east, though they must have come to their southern home centuries ago. The Bantu tribes migrated southward about the fifteenth century, and it was there, in what is known as Cape Province, that the white man found them. Afterward, in the early part of the nineteenth century, some of them, under the leadership of "Mallikad," returned northward and formed the nucleus of the present Matabele tribes of Rhodesia, among whom our brethren are laboring.

It was from West Africa that the early slaves were brought to America. The weston of heroic missionaries, who to a large extent extirpated the religion of Mohammedanism, may have been yet travelers say that even now skeletons lie everywhere along the ocean coast of the Sahara and the Sahara. The Korans law still protects the slave trade in some parts of Africa, and the Hottentots constructed huts of slender poles with loose portable mats thrown over them; the Bantu built huts of poles and clay thatched with grass or reeds.

Had Art of Painting.

The Bushmen practised but one art—that of painting, and today their pictures of elephants, snakes, leopards, giraffes and other animals painted on the rocks, in caves, over different parts of South Africa are still preserved. The Hottentots made vessels of clay and knew something of working in iron. The Bantu were somewhat skillful in both these arts. It is interesting to watch a native blacksmith at work. He heats his iron in a large forge by means of a bellows made from the skin of a goat. Using a hard stone for an anvil, he shapes the heated iron into a spear, hoe or axe, as his need may be. The native also understood the manufacture of charcoal for use in his forge.

The primitive life of the African was very simple. Heaven's sunlight was his clothing, and if he needed more the skins of animals were at his command. His herds of cattle, sheep and goats grazing on the grass throughout the year furnished him with meat and milk, which he made of reeds. He had no use for money. Did you say he was lazy? But what incentive was there for him to work? If we had been placed in similar circumstances, would we have been any better?

MOTHER TALKS PLAINLY.

"Daughter, I want you to be nice to that young druggist." He will make you a good husband.
"He isn't the kind of a man I want to marry."
"I know the kind you want to marry," replied mother, picking up a parrot-backed novel. "You want to marry either a duke or a gentleman that has money, but there are none in your set. Now you look at that young druggist with kindly eyes."
And daughter subsequently did. —Pittsburg Post.

FRANCE GUARDS USE OF SERUMS

Doctors Must Obtain Permission of Academy of Medicine for Treatments.

Paris, July 17.—Almost simultaneously with the action of the New York board of health the French government has drawn up a law regulating the preparation, sale and distribution of therapeutic serums.

On learning that Prof. Roux was taking a leading part in the new legislation the correspondent asked him to explain its scope. The professor said: "The sentences pronounced by the court of cassation in July, 1911, caused consternation in the medical corps, as it fettered all researches and experiments in new serums by ruling that every doctor must demand permission of a commission of the Academy of Medicine before doing so.

"The indictment was given in the case of a doctor at Rouen who was charged with the illicit sale of the serum. The Academy of Medicine and the Superior Council of Hygiene made representations to the government. Minister Klotz then modified the enforcement of the Draconian law of 1895 and is now regulating such matters. Every doctor will hereafter be permitted to employ serums on human beings with a view of testing their harmfulness or their efficacy on condition that he will remain responsible for the results of the treatment and will accept no fees for such treatment. The law adds the doctor must obtain government permission when they desire their products to enter into current use."

WILSON CANNOT ALLOW MEXICAN ANARCHY LONGER

London Newspapers Give Views of Possibility of American Intervention

COSTLY GUERRILLA WAR WOULD BE THE RESULT

Problematic Whether British Government Will Suggest That Some Definite Course Be Adopted.

Germans Sent No Note.

Berlin, July 17.—The foreign office denied today that Germany has demanded that the United States government protect the foreign interests in Mexico. Germany has not taken any diplomatic action whatever at Washington. The foreign office is not aware whether Count Von Bernstorff, the German ambassador to the United States, has discussed the Mexican situation with the secretary, but if he has the discussion was of a wholly unofficial character.

London, July 17.—The London morning papers are interested in the possibility of the United States being obliged to intervene in Mexico. The Morning Post, in an editorial, says:

"It would be a curious instance of the irony of fate if such a policy were forced upon the Wilson administration, and, as intervention would mean a long and costly guerrilla war, it may be assumed that President Wilson will not take action unless absolutely compelled to do so, but he cannot afford indefinitely the continuance of anarchy."

It is learned that England has taken no official steps in regard to the situation in Mexico. The report that she has requested the United States to either recognize the Huerta government or intervene is without foundation in fact.

England naturally is showing keen interest in the developments of the Mexican situation on account of the large financial interests of British subjects in the republic, and would certainly welcome from the United States some definite declaration as to what it proposes to do to solve the problem.

There is great financial unrest here, but whether or not this anxiety will lead the British government to suggest to the United States that some definite course be adopted is problematical.

It is certain nothing had been done at this respect up to a late hour last evening.

Mexico Threatens Expulsion.

Mexico City, July 17.—The Mexican government has determined upon vigorous action with regard to the sending out of false reports from Mexico, regarding the situation and matters relating to the administration. An official of the government summoned all the foreign correspondents and informed them that the government was determined to punish anyone who sent news that was construed as intended to injure the government would be punished by expulsion from the country of the correspondent responsible. The American Ambassador Wilson left Mexico last night over the Mexican railway to Vera Cruz from which port he expects to sail today. He will be before the administration at Washington the actual situation in Mexico, but it will take him some time to reach the American capital. The administration is waived, which would permit him to proceed from Havana by the way of Key West.

Sharp developments in Mexico during the ambassador's absence will cause no great surprise, although at present there is no good reason to believe that the situation will alter materially.

Rendered anxious by the long warfare and by conjectures regarding intervention, the American press here were somewhat alarmed at the ambassador's summons to Washington, but this alarm was allayed by the explanation by the news that the secretary of the embassy, Nelson O'Shaughnessy, will remain.

Keen Interest Shown.

Mexican officials show keen interest in the ambassador's departure, but no anxiety, since it is understood by them he will advocate recognition. The ambassador will make a plea for recognition, which is open to doubt; that he will advocate intervention unless a course is indicated by those close to the ambassador as unadvised.

Many Mexican newspapers have devoted considerable space editorially to such a possibility, and have urged Mexico to forget their differences and unite for the defence of the fatherland.

Unpublished letters in the same vein and club conversations drift to the subject of an intervention. The ambassador has announced he will be back in the Mexican capital in three weeks. It is possible he may not return.

Of late the ambassador has been unable to exact from the Mexican government the protection for Americans which he sought, but this was due to the fact that the government was unable to give this protection.

Some Federal Success.

With respect to the conditions now going on through the country government reports which are practically the only available information indicate that the federalists in the north are meeting with success. They have occupied some of the towns formerly host by the Garancia adherents, but the rebels have not been castrated and are still operating. Every advance of the federalists is confined the government heavily. The rebels are cutting the railroads and the national railroads are required under the protection of Colonel Maas, is again in ruins for a great part of the distance. There is no moral attention in the situation, except for the advance made in the north by Colonel Maas, and General Aveiro. In the state of Sonora, General Olvera, according to the war department, has begun an advance from Fort Guaymas into the desert where the rebels are waiting.

THE ARRIVAL OF FRENCH PRESIDENT ON BRITISH SOIL.

Raymond Poincaré

The above photograph is one of the first to be received in Canada showing the arrival of Raymond Poincaré, seventh President of the Third Republic of France, at Portsmouth.

In the entire republic there are only two or three states not affected by the rebellion.

NEW GOVERNMENT MAKING CHANGES

Newly Elected Australian Administration Is Introducing Innovations.

London, July 17.—The new Australian government is losing no time in effecting several changes in the various federal departments, according to the Sydney correspondent of the Morning Post. The office is to be placed under the control of a business, non-political commission, a decision which is generally welcomed, particularly by the commercial community, which has long complained of the serious inefficiency of the post and telegraph department.

Postmaster-General Wynne has also announced that the hideous design of the commonwealth postage stamp representing the kangaroo must disappear. The kangaroo must disappear and be replaced by a more dignified animal, such as the kangaroo, which has long been a symbol of the six states with marks symbolical of the king's head.

A serious inquiry has been opened into electoral procedure with a view to the avoidance of the gross abuses which have not been detected at the recent general elections.

The minister's decision to abolish the preference, hitherto given to union workers on commonwealth works, has aroused a storm of protest from union officials. The minister, however, declared yesterday that the government was making no attack on unionism, but felt all possible sympathy with industrial unionism. There was, he said, any intention to bring down wages on the government was doing was laying down the principle of public control of the services of the commonwealth for all citizens. Efficiency would be the only test in the future.

With regard to defense matters it is being considered whether more generous support should not be given to rifle clubs throughout the commonwealth. There has been a very large increase in the membership of these clubs in recent years.

CROTHERS IS BUSY WITH MINE WORKERS ON VANCOUVER ISLAND

No Settlement Yet Reached But Press Agent Says There Are Good Prospects For Arrangement.

Vancouver, B.C., July 17.—Hon. T. W. Crotcher, minister of labor, is still on Vancouver Island trying to bring peace out of the coal strike dispute which has been in progress for some time. Last year the results of his conferences were unsatisfactory, but he is now growing more confident that a solution of the difficulty will be reached.

It is stated today that no definite settlement will be announced, but points will be given away on both sides which will allow them to resume work on a good basis. There does not appear to be any provision for recognition of the United Mine Workers, however.

BROADWAY CONSIDERED AS POSING IN THE NUDE

And Then There Is Lady Constance Stewart-Richardson, Whose Bare-Legged Performances are Attracting Attention.

In stage display Broadway just now is posing in the nude as has never posed before, writes Harris Manly, in his weekly gossip of the theatre. Lady Constance Stewart-Richardson in her bare-legged dancing, and the lack of clothes in the 1913 edition of Ziegfeld's "Follies" occasioned the remark.

"Even the tenderloiners," he says, "gaped when a levy of young women in the chorus of the 'Follies' skipped about the stage of the New Amsterdam theatre with apparently nothing between them and arrest but the satin muffs they carried. For the barest second, while fumbling with the glasses, we thought how lucky it was the style in muffs was large and the chorus ladies small, and then we discovered that the muffs, when they opened, showed thin shells from the bare shoulders of the wearers; were divided and partly covered full suits of fleshings both fore and aft."

"A moment later, in illustrating a song entitled 'New York, What's the Matter with You?' making a point of Mayor (Jay) Croker's crusade against the turkey trotters and his closing of the town at one o'clock a.m., there was a raid on a women's Turkish bath, with the result that a dozen bathers, wound tightly but not completely in white sheets, joined the first comers in a dance."

Regarding Lady Richardson.

"After this there did not seem much else to wait for, but still we waited, and toward the end of the evening there was a chorus of dance dancers, the Argentine ladies being wrapped in fringe crepe shawls to represent snow. Then, as a figure of the dance and to show how simple was dressing in the southern countries, the shawls were unrolled and the ladies appeared in black lace knickerbockers over pink tights. In fact, on every possible occasion the redoubtable producers to deceive the audience was apparent, and long before the evening had closed we had been taken completely into the confidence of every feminine member of the company."

Of Lady Richardson, he says: "As the public sees her she is a tall, slim, beautifully formed woman with the natural grace of an amateur and little of the technique of a professional. She is dozens of bare-legged beauties women trotting around the country who exalt her in the art of interpretation of the human body. She is a woman who has the beauty of limb and line that she generally displays."

"She gives the impression of being a healthy, happy, athletic young woman of 30, who, knowing that she is the possessor of a beautiful body, believes she has as much right to display it as she would have to reveal a talent for sculpture or painting. She dances in a scant swimming jersey that covers her from the shoulders to the knees, and she is a woman who is draped a filmy cloud of chiffon—sometimes blue, sometimes green, occasionally grey—depending, we presume, upon the mood of the dance. The chiffon, we may add, interferes no whit with the movements of Lady Constance nor with the view the audience has of her legs and her torso. The audience has beautiful legs and arms are quite bare.

Inspiration of Movement. "Lady Constance starts on modestly, hesitatingly, and begins quickly to stir the atmosphere with wistful arms. Her facial expression is uncertain, her movements suggest the inspiration of the movement. She follows with perfect rhythm and considerable grace the sweep of the music, finding the composer, we judge, to have been rather and when he was writing the 'Humoresque.' At its conclusion she smiles languidly until she sits upon the stool of her right foot, later rising easily therefrom to acknowledge the applause."

"Spinning freely of her ambitions and her ways, Lady Constance admits that she is dancing in an American music hall because she has many uses for the money. She lives simply, and in order to keep herself in trim allows but two days a week to dress in her own clothes. She weighs, as she is willing to prove, 121 pounds when stripped of her swimming costume, which means that she must weigh at least 1212 stageside."

"Her first New York audience was friendly to Lady Constance, and there were many curtain calls. After each she bowed humbly, shook her head playfully, and spread her two arms appealingly, as though to say: 'What more can I do? What more can I take off?'"

BRAKEMAN IS KILLED ON THE CANADIAN RAIL

Winnipeg, July 17.—Stephen, Hanon, brakeman on the Canadian Northern railway, has left arm cut off and his leg crushed below the knee, when he slipped between the cars in the St. Boniface yards last night.

The ambulance was immediately called, and he was taken to the St. Boniface hospital, where he died an hour after the accident.

The deceased was 40 years old.

TO VISIT PETRIFIED MAN.

Moore, 35, July 17.—Several professors are now en route to Willow Beach to see the petrified man discovered there and which is said to be 10,000 years old. Among the professors is Prof. Hill-Tout, of Oxford University. These petrified remains were discovered by a farmer some three weeks ago.

TWO FIRES AT ONCE.

London, Ont., July 17.—Two fires last evening kept the department busy. The first call to Hon. Adam Beck's box factory caused a loss of about $10,000. The second call was to the garage where the business of the loss was $8,000. Both are covered by insurance.

NAVAL POLICY THE SAME.

London, July 17.—In the house of commons last week Hon. Louis Harcourt, colonial secretary, in reply to a question, declared he did not know what the views of the present Australian ministry were in the matter of naval defence. Hon. J. Hume Cook the new premier, has therefore authorized a statement that there is no intention on the part of the new government of changing the naval policy of their predecessors.

KILLED BY RUNAWAY.

Winnipeg, July 17.—Before he could make a move to save himself, Harrison Nobbs, aged 25, manager of the city messenger service, was run down and instantly killed on Main street yesterday afternoon, when a madly plunging team of horses mounted the sidewalk and swept into the crowd.

The team was fresh from the country and took fright at an automobile, which also caused the driver, Ben Tobbin, to lose control.

The sidewalks have all been installed, and the work of leveling the roadway is being proceeded with. The tunnel under the race track which will admit of the horses being taken into the track without damaging the latter has been completed.

Syndicate Service Demoralized.—The street car service on Syndicate avenue was demoralized for a short time this morning through a car spilling a switch at the corner of Northwood boulevard and Kirkman. Four cars were run down Syndicate to Sutherland where they crossed over to their regular route via Naiman.

South Siders Want Walk.—Residents on the south side are preparing a petition for the city commissioners asking for the construction of a four foot plank walk from Tenth street east to Fifteenth street east on Sixth avenue south. This section of the south side is building up rapidly and as a result the residents feel that being are entitled at least to some of the minor modern improvements.

Clearing Car Barn Site.—The work of removing the sidetracks from the old car barn site is now being proceeded with as the school board is anxious to secure the old barns for manual training, and the cars have all been removed to the new barns as have the offices of the department.
